FUEGO FIRE BOX

Design: Johannes Lindnder

A fire has always been the meeting point for people, since cave man time. FUEGO is a stylish and modern version of a campfire, perfect to gather around.

You can use it as a fire box, it has a practical drawer with a stainless steel grid in the bottom, where you place the fire wood or charcoal. The drawer is very useful for easy emptying of the ashes.

Included to the FUEGO is aslo another stainless steel grid, meant to use for bbq-ing. If you would like to bbq more food at the same time, we have extra grids for sale.

CORTEN STEEL

FUEGO Fire box is made in Sweden of Corten steel. Corten, also known as weathering steel has high tensile strength and is corrosion resistant. It starts out grey and will over time, due to weather and wind, change color into a rust like red-brown surface.

The surface only appears rusty, in fact it gets this look due to an oxidation process that protects the steel and will make it resistant to weather and water.

There is no need to treat the corten surface with paint or laquer and the steel will keep its strength.

To speed up the oxidation process, it is possible to spray water mixed with regular salt a few times and let this mixture work it's wonders. Every time you treat it with salty water, it will deepen the rust like color. Make sure to wash it properly when you are done, so that it is clean from all the salt before you start using your FUEGO.

FUEGO- With the surface received after standing outside for a while.
